IT'S TIME FOR the anti-racist majority to make ourselves heard.

The British government has responded to the inspiring Black Lives Matter movement's demands to end institutional racism and the disproportionate impact of Covid-19 by denying its very existence and launching further attacks.

Attempts to scapegoat refugees and migrants are leading to deaths in the Mediterranean and the Channel as governments attempt to reinforce the borders of 'Fortress Europe'.

In Britain, Priti Patel is pushing the Tories' racist offensive through the Nationalities & Borders bill to criminalise refugees and solidarity with them.

In Scotland, the continued existence of Dungavel detention centre, the campaign for justice for Sheku Bayoh, appalling privately outsourced refugee accommodation, and growing awareness of the Scottish establishment's historic role in colonialism and the slave trade show racism must be systematically opposed here too.

Internationally, we see a rise of racism, Islamophobia and antisemitism and the growth of racist and fascist organisations – legitimised by the politics of divide and rule.

But the events of Kenmore Street that stopped deportations, the overwhelming response in support of footballers who have faced racism shown by #TakeTheKnee or ongoing solidarity with refugees shows that we are the majority and we can win change.

On Saturday 19 March we will be marching in Glasgow and London as part of a day of international protests to mark UN Anti-Racism Day and in Cardiff on 20 March.

This is our chance to take to the streets, rally all the anti-racist forces against the Tories' offensive and send a powerful message that the anti-racist majority demands to be heard.

We say: Refugees and migrants welcome – Black Lives Matter – No to racism, Islamophobia, antisemitism and fascism.
